Course Description

The 20th Annual Scientific Meeting has been designed to provide a thorough overview on the evaluation and management of chronic pelvic pain disorders. The meeting emphasizes the multidisciplinary and collaborative approach to the management of chronic pelvic pain. Presentations will combine research findings and clinical care recommendations important to the care of women and men afflicted by chronic pelvic pain. For providers who need a more broad understanding of musculoskeletal, neurological, and visceral causes of pelvic pain, and available multidimensional treatments, additional workshops will provide a more basic overview of the evaluation of chronic pelvic pain.

Target Audience

Gynecologists, physical therapists, urologists, primary care physicians, nurses, surgeons, pain management physicians, psychologists, neurologists, basic science researchers

Needs Statement

It is known that millions of patients suffer with disorders that cause chronic pelvic pain. The social, psychological and financial costs associated with treatments of these disorders are enormous. Yet, less than 10% of patients are receiving care from a provider trained in management of chronic pain disorders. Many patients endure being misdiagnosed or receiving inappropriate treatment because of the practitioner's lack of knowledge on this subject. Unless practitioners and researchers are educated about factors that affect patient care, treatment outcomes and research in chronic pelvic pain disorders, it is likely that patients with chronic pelvic pain will continue to lack appropriate treatment in the future. Furthermore, without exchange of clinical and research information across all disciplines encompassing the treatment of chronic pelvic pain, advances in treatment options for these patients will not be possible. Recently, a study was published stating that less than 10 % of medical students are prepared to treat pain patients when graduating from medical school. This conference serves as a sit for post-graduate education on complex topics.

Course Objectives

At the completion of this course, attendees should be able to:

- Describe the latest evidence of evaluation and surgical management of endometriosis
- Interpret the clinical updates on Interstitial Cystitis, Vulvodynia, Irritable Bowel Syndrome, Anal Pain
- Recognize the role the central nervous system plays in CPP
- Integrate exposure to new treatment techniques for CPP
- Integrate improved knowledge of how to evaluate and treat patients with sexual dysfunction

Accreditation Statement

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education through the joint sponsorship of the American College of Legal Medicine and the International Pelvic Pain Society. The American College of Legal Medicine is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The American College of Legal Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 28.50 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Conflict Resolution Statement

The American College of Legal Medicine CME Office has reviewed this activity's speaker and planner disclosures and resolved all identified conflicts of interest, if applicable.

CE Accreditation Statement

The Illinois Chapter Continuing Education Committee has approved this course according to the Criteria for Approval of Continuing Education offerings established by the Illinois Physical Therapy Association. The 2012 IPPS Annual Fall Meeting on Pelvic Pain: Merging Science and Clinical Care for Pelvic Pain Disorders, has been accredited for a maximum of 28.50 Continuing Education hours. Attendees who reside in a state other than Illinois should inquire with their state board regarding acceptance of Illinois accreditation.
